The New Mexico Department of Health utilizes the “Am I Rural” website that is located at the following link <http://www.raconline.org/amirural/> to determine if practice sites meet the requirement of “rural”. The “Am I Rural” site uses various federal eligibility criteria to determine status.

Application Process: How do you apply for and receive a tax credit?

There are four steps in the Rural Health Care Practitioner Tax Credit application process:

- An applicant for a Rural Health Care Practitioner Tax Credit must submit an application to the NM Department of Health documenting completion of a year-long health care practice at an approved location.
- The NMDOH will review the application and issue a Certificate of Eligibility to qualifying health care practitioners.
- The applicant will then complete a Tax Credit Claim form, available from the NM Taxation and Revenue Department.
- The applicant will attach the completed claim form, and tax credit Certificate of Eligibility to the taxpayer's New Mexico income tax return. The Certificate of Eligibility must be for the same taxable year as the income tax return.

Program Start Date: When can applications be submitted?

Applications for the tax credit program will be accepted by the NM Department of Health beginning January 1 of each year for the previous tax year. The application provides information demonstrating the health care practitioner's practice at an approved location for the taxable year beginning January 1 of the prior year.

The authorizing statute for the Program permits a full-time credit for eligible health care practitioners who have "provided health care during a taxable year for at least 2080 hours" at an eligible practice site. The statute permits a one-half credit amount for eligible health care practitioners who have "provided health care services for at least 1040 hours but less than 2080 hours" at an eligible practice site.
