

What is the Central Registry?

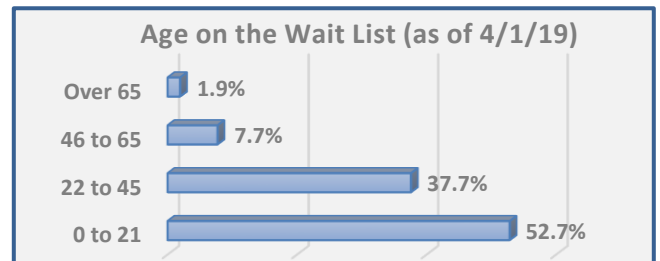

The Central Registry and the Wait List are different. The Central Registry is a database that tracks applications for Home & Community-Based (DD or Mi Via) Waivers. Applicants on the Central Registry are assigned a status: Start, Complete, Child Pend and On Hold. The date an individual completes the registration process is their registration date and their status is “Start.” If the individual is confirmed to match the developmental disability definition, their status is changed to “Complete.” Children younger than age eight, who have a confirmed specific related condition but do not yet have documentation of substantial functional limitations are placed in the “Child Pend” status until age 9 or further documentation can be obtained. Applicants who have been offered waiver allocation and have chosen to not accept an allocation can place their allocation “On Hold.” Individuals in this status keep their original registration date and are not identified for an allocation until they request a status change from “On Hold” back to “Complete.”

What is the Wait List?

The Wait List is comprised of those individuals on the Central Registry who are in a “Complete” or “On Hold” status. Those are the individuals confirmed to match the developmental disability definition and those who have chosen to place their allocation on hold.

Allocations

When funding becomes available, individuals are offered an allocation for waiver services based on their registration date and Region of residence. As of April 2019, the individuals receiving allocations waited an average of 13.3 years.

The DDSD is currently allocating six individuals each month to replace those individuals who left the waiver through attrition. The individuals allocated in April 2019 had registration dates listed in table to the right.
